Teaching and Learning Methods

Much emphasis is placed on what is happening in society today, so you will find you are given many newspaper articles and encouraged to listen to news and read selected newspapers for yourself.

Wherever possible, active learning methods are used and you are given an opportunity to undertake some small scale research for yourself.

As Sociology is an academic subject, you should not consider doing it unless you are prepared to do some reading and learn from academic texts which use some technical vocabulary.

Homework is a natural extension of what we do in class and it will often consist of review and consolidation of class work, reading or learning or going out to find out something.

Extra Curricular

There may be external speakers visit to lecture on relevant topics at key points in the course.
