

Information for University and College Admissions Teams

Students at Parmiter's completing A Levels will not have had the opportunity to sit AS qualifications. It is school policy that all A Level subjects are taught as two-year linear courses.

Students completing two-year linear A Levels have taken rigorous internal examinations, marked to A Level standard. These were taken in May of Year 12 and have acted as a guide for our UCAS predicted grades. Students are also closely tracked through their two-year courses using CAT predictive data.

Students were encouraged to opt for subjects for which they had both interest and aptitude. The majority of students chose to study three subjects. Four A Levels are only possible at Parmiter's: i) for students studying Mathematics and Further Mathematics, ii) for students who achieve five or more 8/9 grades. However, we encourage students to complete only three A Levels in most cases.

EPQ is an optional qualification at Parmiter's School. It is completed in October of Year 13 for January submission.
